SPRINT 2 DONE

burndown chart for sprint 2

Insights page

Qna

1) Did your estimations reflect the actual effort?

Answer: Yeah, pretty much. The larger stories like Manage Reading Challenges were given 8 story points because they involved more functionality, while simpler stories like Authenticate User were given 3 points. Overall, the estimates felt reasonable for the amount of work involved.

2) Was your backlog well-prioritized?

Answer: Yes. I prioritized the core features such as Authenticate User, Join Reading Challenge, Track Reading Progress, and Participate in Discussions as High or Highest because they are important for the main functionality of the portal. Supporting features were given Medium priority.

3) How did your simulated sprint align with your plan?

Answer: It aligned well with my plan. Sprint 1 focused mainly on the core functionality of the Book Club portal, while Sprint 2 contained the remaining supporting features such as viewing challenge details and moderating discussions. The work was divided between the two sprints without any major spillover.

4) What insights did the burndown chart give about your team's capacity?

Answer: The burndown chart showed how the remaining story points decreased as work was completed during the sprint. Reaching zero by the end indicated that the planned workload was manageable and that the team's estimated capacity was reasonably well matched with the amount of work planned.
